

I have been on the Wisconsin No Call list since its inception and feel that it would be wrong to try to force any state to rescind their No Call list restrictions in place of a Federal one. Our state has a more restrictive code than the Federal Code would have in our state. I have peace of mind, that when I come home from a long day at work, I will not be disturbed by unwelcomed calls. Since our current law WORKS in Wisconsin, why should the Federal Government interfere? It seems that there may be special interest groupss that are pressuring the FCC to change this. This is NOT in the best interest of the consumers.
